> Engaging young people in democracy – a comprehensive guide

How do you get young people to turn out for local and national elections and participate in local decision-making? Where councils have taken positive steps to involve young people in decision-making, they have been impressed by their interest and commitment. Read the guide and discover how your council can engage this future electorate.

> Creative Councils: call for ideas

The LG Group, in collaboration with NESTA, wants to hear from councils that share a vision for radical innovation that matters to their communities. The LG Group's ambition over the next two years is to work with a small group of creative, pioneering councils throughout England and Wales to spread transformational new approaches. In June it will select up to 20 of the most promising ideas. Send your submission now. Applications close at noon on 23 May.

> Healthy communities: green gyms

Gyms are a fun way of keeping fit and healthy. Yet the lure of the treadmill and the appeal of pumping iron are not for everyone. Discover how the green gym movement is energising participants by offering an alternative – creating exercise sessions in the great outdoors. Whether it's a heavy workout or more moderate exercise, find out how green gyms can provide it all.

> Community environment projects: how to measure their impact

Oxfordshire County Council needed to understand the impact of its community environment initiatives on carbon emissions, community cohesion and its communities' sense of identity. Access a case study which explores how the council developed an impact framework to estimate lifetime impacts and compare the cost effectiveness of different activities.
